Recent Decision of Supreme Court Applies to Nevada Water Cases

The Supreme court of the United States, through a decision handed down by Judge Van Deventer on June 5th, upholds the constitutionality of the Oregon water law. This decision is one of great importance to the state of Nevada, inasmuch as the Nevada act was drafted from and is similar in most all respects to that of Oregon. The most marked difference is that a water commission instead of the state engineer, as is the case in Nevada, is given the power and is responsible for the enforcement of the law.

The Pacific Live Stock company, which is a large land owner in Oregon and Nevada, has been fighting the Oregon law in that state on the grounds that it was unconstitutional and in violation of the Fourteenth amendment to the constitution, by depriving citizens of their property without due process of law, in that old appropriators of water were compelled to prove their water rights before a state commission and paying fees in connection therewith. The Nevada law is being tested in the Federal court in this city before Judge Farrington and the questions raised in the suit are similar to the ones raised in the Oregon case. Under the Oregon law public notice is given that at a certain time the state will begin the adjudication or ascertaining of rights on a certain stream. This paragraph is similar to the one in the Nevada law. The court in its decision upholds this clause and says that the intent and purpose of such legislation is to fix and define the various water rights and to ascertain if there is any unappropriated water in the stream, and thus to prevent useless and injurious litigation in the future by having a record of the various rights instead of depending upon uncertain parole evidence in the future. The decision also says that the findings of the water com-

Geraldine Farrar in "Carmen" at Grand

Tomorrow at both matinee and evening the Grand will present the celebrated star, Geraldine Farrar, in "Carmen."

Geraldine Farrar has put her heart and soul and body into this picture, and without the aid of the magic of her voice, has proved herself one of the greatest actresses of all times. Her picture, "Carmen" will live long after her operatic characterization has died in the limbus of forgotten singers. Her acting in this production is one of the marvels of the stage and screen, so natural, so realistic, that it is hard to believe that it is acting.

In the cast supporting Miss Farrar are such noted artists as Wallace Reid, playing Don Jose; Pedro de Cordoba, as Escamillo, the toreador; William Elmer, as Morales; H. B. Carpenter, as Pastia; Jeannie MacPherson, Anita King, Ernest Joy, James Neil and others.

Added numbers—Travel Pictures of South America.
A Paramount Program. Admission 10 and 20 cents. Family matinee at 2:30, 5 and 10 cents.

PLATFORM ADOPTED AND EVERY WORD RINGS WITH AMERICANISM

Denounces Americans of Undivided Allegiance, Favors Adequate Army and Navy and Endorses Underwood Tariff--Woman Suffrage Approved But Held to Be a State Issue

ST. LOUIS, June 16.—President Wilson and Vice-President Marshall were nominated by acclamation last night by the Democratic National convention, the ticket being completed four minutes before Friday morning.

Contrary to expectations, however, the convention did not finish its work because the platform was not ready and it meets again at 11 o'clock this morning.

It was announced in the convention that the sub-committee drafting the platform had finished its work, but that the entire resolutions committee was not assembled to pass upon it, and it was not known when that could be done.

There never was any doubt of President Wilson's nomination last night, but there was a possibility that some vice-presidential booms might be brought out in opposition to Vice-President Marshall. They melted away, however, when the convention got in session, and as soon as President Wilson's nomination had been made by a roaring chorus of acclamation Senator Kern, who renominated Mr. Marshall, cast aside a long prepared speech and simply declared: "I nominate Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana for vice-president."

To President Wilson's nomination there was only one dissenting vote, Robert Emmett Burke of Illinois, who came to the convention announcing that he was opposed to the president. His vote technically made the president's nomination, 1091 to 1.

[By United Press]
ST. LOUIS, June 16. The convention met at 11:20, and awaiting the resolutions committee report Senator Reed spoke. He declared the Republicans had to nominate a man "who had not opened his lips for six years." Senator Walsh then read the platform, Senator Stone moving for its adoption. Governor Ferguson of Texas also presented a minority platform report.

Platform Finished

ST. LOUIS, June 16. After a twenty-two hour session the resolutions committee this morning finished its platform. It consists of twenty-four planks. There was a long fight on suffrage and the committee finally adopted a plank approving of woman suffrage, but holding it was strictly a state issue. The platform endorsed the administration, reviews Democratic legislation and endorsed the Underwood tariff measure. It strongly denounced "Americans of divided allegiance," favored the maintenance of an adequate army and the fullest development of modern methods for seacoast defense and the maintenance of an adequate citizens reserve as a fixed policy for continuous naval development. It urged Pan-American amity and an increased South American commerce. Called Mexican intervention "revolting to the people of the United States" and praised Wilson's Mexican policy. Endorsed the pending shipping bill as merchant marine and favored the conservation of the nation's resources. It favored the vigorous prosecution of investigations to render agriculture more profitable and endorsed federal aid in building post and military roads. It urged that the federal government give all its employees a living wage and eight-hour day and adequate industrial accident compensation. Endorsed the seaman's act and favored speedy enactment of child labor laws. Favored the "extension of franchise to women by the states upon the same terms as men," and urged the development of harbors and inland waterways.

In Nominating Wilson General Westcott Makes Masterful Address

[By United Press]
ST. LOUIS, June 16.—In nominating President Wilson John H. Westcott, attorney general of New Jersey,

CAN ONLY TALK IN WHISPERS

[By United Press]
NEW YORK, June 16.—Friends of Roosevelt and Hughes believe they can plan a conference of the two soon. They also declare Roosevelt intends to stump the country for Hughes. Colonel Roosevelt suffered another coughing spell last night and appears worse today. He refused to see visitors. He went to his physician's office this morning for examination. He cannot talk above a whisper and appears to be suffering great pain.

said: "Prophecy is fulfilled. The eternal verities of righteousness have prevailed. Undismayed by the calamities of war, unmoved by vituperation and vain declamation, holding to the pure altar of truth, the schoolmaster is statesman; the statesman, financier; the financier, emancipator; the emancipator, pacificator; the pacificator is the moral leader of democracy."

"The nation is at work. The nation is at peace. The nation is accomplishing the destiny of democracy. Four years ago the nation was not at work. With resources boundless, with a hundred million people eager to achieve and do, commerce struggled in the coils of an inadequate financial system. Credit was at the mercy of piracy. The small businessman was bound hand and foot. Panic hung like a storm cloud over the business world."

"Now bursting granaries, teeming factories, crowded railways and overladen ships distribute wealth and comfort to uncounted millions the world over. The parallel of American prosperity is not found in industrial history, nor is it causeless. It did not descend, like a merciful accident, from heaven. It cannot be attributed to the manufacture of war materials, constituting a bare 5 per centum of the volume of national business."

"There stands the astounding phenomenon of American prosperity. What is its explanation? The Euclid of financial theory worked to a demonstration measures for the country's relief. He promptly put into effect the legislative expression of a great program. He did not talk. He did things. He dynamited the monetary dams and let credit flow to the remotest corners of the land, its spray dashing even upon foreign shores. He released the nation's resources and set the energies of all men free to exploit them. The prosperity of the nation is the product of statesmanship and financial genius."

"The nation is at peace in a world at war. America is confronted with appalling realities. An attempt to catch the presidency by phrases is a work of folly. With the whole world tense and anxious, patriotic advice and suggestion are of more value than abuse and defamation."

"What are the realities that face us? In Mexico exist the potentialities of civilization. In her wealth, her history, her schools, her religion, her needs, her very suffering and patriotism lie the indestructible seeds of progress. To have conquered Mexico would have seated death at the American fireside. It would have destroyed our property and added hundreds of millions of taxation to the burdens of the nation. It would have prostituted the bravery and patriotism of American arms to the greed and avarice of concessionaires. The diplomacy of 'watchful waiting' averted these calamities."

"War with any European nation would have set the world aflame and stopped the march of progress for a century. War with Europe would have cut asunder the moral forces that bind the nation and left an age of darkness, anarchy and despair. With preternatural poise and clearness of vision, the schoolmaster and statesman with consummate skill, is piloting America through the rushing storm."

"Therefore, my fellow countrymen, not I, but his deeds and achievements; not I, but the spirit and purposes of America; not I, but the prayers of just men; not I, but civilization itself, nominate to succeed himself to the presidency of the United States, to the presidency of a hundred million free people, bound in impregnable union, the scholar, the statesman, the financier, the emancipator, the pacificator, the moral leader of democracy—Woodrow Wilson."

As Judge Westcott closed with a mention of the name "Woodrow Wilson" the crowd broke into a great demonstration.

Moving picture flashlights blazed and flags were paraded in front of the stands. The band played "The Star Spangled Banner," while a huge banner bearing the president's likeness was unfurled from the roof of the hall.

The delegates began a parade bearing state stanchions. The crowd on the floor and balconies rose to its feet. Many delegates stood on their chairs. "Dixie" and other melodies by the band evoked first bursts of cheering.

Chairman James yielded the chair during the demonstration to Representative Heflin of Alabama. Woman delegates were among the paraders in the aisles. Senators and representatives helped carry banners.

Sergeant-at-Arms Martin stirred up the enthusiasm by waving the Texas lone star flag over the heads of the crowd from the chairman's rostrum. Other state flags were taken to the platform. The crowd joined in singing a medley including: "How Dry I Am," "Old Black Joe," "The Red, White and Blue," and others.

After the demonstration had been under way thirty minutes, New York and some other delegates resumed their seats. Waving a cane over the rail at the chairman's desk, Senator Hughes renewed the clamor by leading three cheers for the president.

The band, having exhausted the list of popular airs, then turned to "Tipperary," and the crowd joined in the chorus. Then the musicians went back to American airs. Some of the delegates stopped demonstrating long enough to drain pop bottles and then went back at it again.
